Textbooks

Most programs of study use customized eBooks that are not available from other sources. A few programs, however, may use traditional textbooks. Charges for both customized eBooks and traditional textbooks are included in the tuition charge. Students in programs where traditional textbooks are used have the right to obtain them from other sources. Students who choose to do so may request refunds. Purchase and pricing information for each traditional textbook (such as title, author, and ISBN) is available online at: <http://berkeleystore.berkeleycollege.edu>.

Some programs may also require additional books, supplies or other costs that are not included in the tuition charge. Detailed information on those requirements is available at: <http://berkeleycollege.edu/disclosures>

Textbooks are generally available two weeks before the start of each semester. In order to receive a credit for textbooks that are purchased from another source, a student must request a waiver from the Department Chair. See the Student Handbook for more information: <http://berkeleycollege.edu/student-handbook/2017-2018-general-information.htm>
