Discussion Board

Forums are made up of individual discussion threads that can be organized around a particular subject.

<input type="checkbox"/>	Forum	Description
<input type="checkbox"/>	Week 1 Discussion 	Please introduce yourselves to your classmates.

5. Click on the Week 1 Discussion Thread.

The screenshot shows a list of discussion threads. At the top, there are two yellow action bars, each containing a 'Thread Actions' dropdown menu and a 'Collect' button. Below these is a table with columns for 'Date' and 'Thread'. The first row in the table shows a date of '2/14/10 9:58 PM' and a thread titled 'Week 1 Discussion'. A red arrow points to the 'Week 1 Discussion' link. Below the table, there is another yellow action bar with 'Thread Actions' and 'Collect' buttons.

6. Read the Discussion Directions.

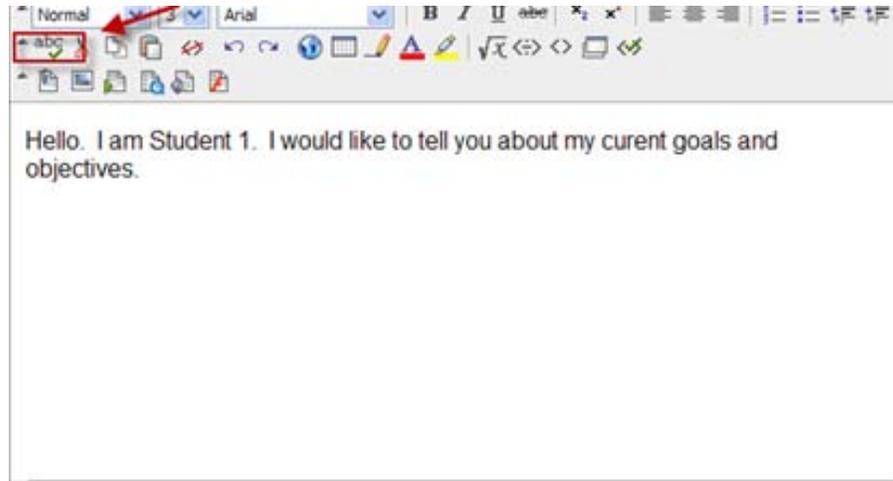

The screenshot shows a discussion post. At the top, there is a light blue header with '< Week 1 Discussion >'. Below this is a grey box containing the post's metadata: 'Author: Maryjane Clerkin', 'Posted Date: Sunday, February 14, 2010 9:58:12 PM EST', and 'Edited Date: Sunday, February 14, 2010 9:58:12 PM EST'. The main text of the post is 'Please introduce yourselves to your classmates.' A red arrow points to this text. At the bottom, there is another light blue header with '< Week 1 Discussion >'.

7. Click on Reply.

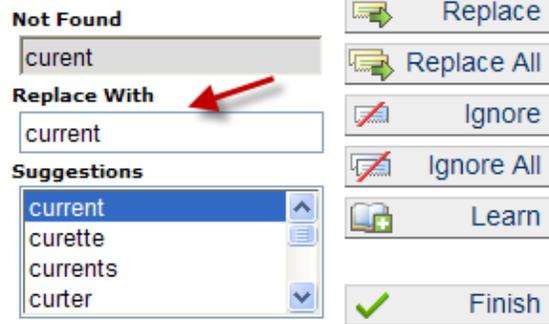

The screenshot shows the bottom of a discussion post. It features a light blue header with three buttons: 'Reply', 'Quote', and 'Set Flag'. A red arrow points to the 'Reply' button. Below the buttons is a grey rectangular area, likely a text input field for the reply.

8. Fill in your reply. Click on the abc icon to check your spelling.

9. The Spell Check function will check to find errors and suggest corrections.
