Berkeley College Honors Program
for 2025 High School Graduates

Honors Scholars Rise to the Challenge

Berkeley College is committed to challenging all students to reach their full potential. The Honors Program is designed to give a limited number of high-achieving students the opportunity to study in greater depth.*

A Challenging Opportunity with Exceptional Benefits

In addition to an opportunity for an advanced level of study, benefits of the Honors Program include:

- 2025 high school graduates who are accepted to the Honors Program may receive up to a 50% tuition scholarship. Students must be enrolled full-time and maintain a cumulative 3.00 GPA each award period to retain their scholarship
- Distinctive recognition on diploma and transcript, and Honors Program cord at graduation
- Involvement in a learning community with other high-achieving students across the system
- Limited enrollment that facilitates active participation and close relationships with peers and faculty
- Preparation for higher-level learning and challenges
- Access to the Honors Scholars-Honors Program Canvas Organization
- Opportunities to participate in community service activities (a minimum of 30 hours over three semesters)
- Inclusion in an Honors Symposium where they will present an Honors poster and/or thesis to the Berkeley community
- Recognition at Honors Scholars Graduate Reception upon program conclusion

*Students enrolled in a certificate or degree program within the School of Health Studies are not eligible to apply or participate in the Honors Program.

Awards are applied after all federal grants, Post-9/11 GI Bill® amounts, state grants, and state scholarships are applied, not to exceed the remaining tuition amount. Cost of books, supplies, and graduation fees are not included. May be combined with the Berkeley College Grant and Berkeley TAP/TAG Grant. Cannot be combined with any other Berkeley College grants or scholarships. There are 20 scholarships available for students attending a campus in New York and 20 scholarships available for students attending a campus in New Jersey or Online.

Getting Started: First-Year Honors Courses

Incoming first-year students begin the Honors Program with courses that set the tone for the level of study they should expect.

- Honors English I: Writing and Research (HON1105): Fall
- Honors English II: Writing Through Literature (HON2205): Winter
- Pre-Honors Seminar (HON2210): Spring

A Social Justice Theme-Based Approach

The first-year Honors Program theme examines social issues within the United States and abroad. Honors students will be able to identify societal inequalities and challenges between law and science in a changing society and the relationship between police and all citizen groups in the United States. It explores current societal paradigm shifts and challenges on issues such as same-sex marriage, gender equality, inequality, LGBTQ challenges, socioeconomic class, and the relationship between police and society. Seminars will draw from interdisciplinary ideas and theories such as feminism theories, sociology theories, and criminological theories to help explain current news, policies, tragedies, and events.

Learn from an Accomplished Faculty

Professors are chosen for the Honors Program for their expertise, ability to engage students in sustained discussions, track record of scholarship, and use of innovative teaching methods and technology. Honors learning communities participate in online seminars or meet in person each week and are also involved in field trips, plenary sessions, co-curricular activities, and special events. All Honors students must participate in community service. Students are required to complete a minimum of 30 hours of community service over three semesters for each year they are enrolled in Honors courses.

Eligibility Requirements

The Honors Program begins at the start of the fall semester of each academic year. Only students enrolled in an Associate's or Bachelor's degree program are eligible to participate in the Honors Program. Eligible students must have a minimum high school GPA of 3.50 and be able to demonstrate prior academic excellence. Honors Program students must complete a series of Honors seminars with their assigned learning communities.

How to Apply Eligible First-Year Candidates

Complete the Honors Program application and include the following by July 1, 2025:

- One written essay
- Evidence of past academic achievements (e.g. certificates, awards, dean's list letters, honor societies, etc.)
- Resume (if available)
- One or more letters of recommendation (two are preferred) from a teacher, supervisor, or staff member (advisor, counselor, etc.)
- Unofficial transcripts proving GPA and credits
